

According to Péter Szijjártó, the order of last week's events provides a reasonable explanation for the Hungarian government's claim that the Tisza Party is colluding with the Ukrainian secret service, but even those attending the foreign minister's event do not necessarily believe this. Some of the locals consider Viktor Orbán's words of praise for the anti-Hungarian presidential candidate in Romania to be a mistake, but several people expressed the view that if George Simion wins, he will be able to cooperate well with Viktor Orbán.
